At Coto Work, market knowledge, industry experience and specialization are our core strengths.

Leveraging our wide industry contacts and the talent and dedication of our internal team, we are able to offer a dynamic yet flexible recruitment service to our candidates.

The recruitment market in Tokyo is increasingly candidate-driven. While this provides advantages to candidates, it also presents challenges in choosing from an increasing number of available options. Through closely partnering with some of the most attractive companies in the market, we are able to add value and insight for our candidates, while helping them navigate throughout the hiring process.

We understand that candidates have various individual requirements that make them unique, and do not believe in a one-size-fits-all formula. We are able to share useful inside-information regarding culture-fit and required hard skills, in order to make the best possible professional matches. Furthermore, we always take great care in helping our candidates to prepare for each interview, considerably smoothing their way during the application process, and helping them to take their career to the next level!

Our multilingual and multicultural team look forward to helping you in English or in Japanese!
