

Daiwabo Co., Ltd.

Company Description

Anticipating changing values, we will engage in dynamic shifts in thinking without being bound by common sense.

Our roots date back to 1941, when Daiwabo was established through the merger of four companies: Kinka Boseki, Hinode Boshoku, Izumo Seishoku, and Wakayama Boseki.

Since then, we have been proposing new value to our customers by pursuing the possibilities of textiles, with the aim of contributing to people's enriched lives.

Thanks to the power of digital technology, the economic structure is currently undergoing a period of significant change, and there is a growing momentum for decarbonization in terms of environmental issues and changes in behavior patterns for a new normal society. In order to continue to grow as a company, we believe it is necessary to anticipate these changing values and dynamically shift our thinking without being bound by common sense. We have to change. Seizing change as an opportunity, we will effectively reallocate our management resources to create new value and actively promote co-creation with our customers.

Moreover, our corporate activities must not only create economic value, but also carry out our public and social responsibilities as a company in an integrated manner. In addition to our role in providing customers with sustainable fiber materials, our management priorities include developing a foundation for workers, maintaining the health and safety of the workplace, protecting the environment, adhering to social norms, and interacting with the local community.
