Company Description

Radix Company Limited, headquartered in Setagaya, Tokyo, has been a steadfast contributor to the Japanese food industry since its founding in February 1998. As a specialized trading house, Radix operates at the critical intersection of food processing technology, providing high-performance solutions that ensure quality, efficiency, and safety.

The company's core business revolves around the import and domestic distribution of state-of-the-art food processing machinery. Radix has cultivated deep-rooted partnerships with leading manufacturers across Europe—particularly in Poland, Italy and Germany and —where some of the world's most sophisticated food engineering originates. By sourcing these technologies, Radix enables Japanese food producers to implement world-class standards in their own manufacturing lines. Their product portfolio includes advanced equipment for processing meat, seafood, and prepared foods.

In an era where the Japanese food industry faces significant structural challenges—such as labor shortages, aging infrastructure, and the urgent need for sustainable practices—Radix stands out as a solution provider. They don't merely supply hardware; they offer strategic consulting to help clients automate manual processes and minimize waste. This proactive approach helps Japanese manufacturers stay competitive in a globalized market while maintaining the high quality expected by Japanese consumers.

The corporate culture at Radix is characterized by a commitment to excellence and a global mindset. Despite being a focused organization, the team possesses deep technical expertise and the linguistic capability to negotiate with top-tier international suppliers. For professionals looking to engage in international trade with a direct impact on society's fundamental need for food, Radix offers a stable yet dynamic environment.
