Wibu-Systems Co., Ltd.

Company Description

Wibu-Systems, founded in 1989 by Oliver Winzenried and Marcellus Buchheit in Karlsruhe, Germany, is an innovative global leader in the field of software protection, software licensing, and cybersecurity. WIBU-SYSTEMS K.K., established in October 2018, serves as the Japanese subsidiary, delivering high-quality German-engineered solutions and support to the local market.

The company’s flagship product, CodeMeter, is an award-winning ecosystem designed to give software publishers and intelligent device manufacturers a comprehensive suite of tools to fight cyber threats and harness the power of smart licensing. CodeMeter employs state-of-the-art encryption and anti-reverse engineering technologies to safeguard intellectual property, digital assets, and technical know-how from unauthorized duplication, piracy, and tampering.

Beyond robust protection, Wibu-Systems is a pioneer in software monetization. The CodeMeter platform enables businesses to seamlessly implement, deliver, and manage a wide array of flexible licensing models, such as subscription-based, pay-per-use, feature-on-demand, and cloud-managed services. This flexibility allows vendors to adapt to shifting market demands and build scalable, secure revenue streams.

Wibu-Systems' technology forms an essential, invisible engine driving secure digital transformation across a diverse range of industries, including industrial automation, medical technology, smart mobility, 3D printing, and AI applications. Trusted by global market leaders, the company continues to innovate through extensive research and development, ensuring that hardware, software, and cloud-based systems operate with maximum resilience and security in an increasingly connected world.
