

ITStudy, Inc.

Company Description

ITStudy Co., Ltd. is an innovative IT company established on June 1, 2018, based in Taito-ku, Tokyo (Akihabara area). The company has a unique background that started with the operation of an IT school, and it places the combination of human growth and technology at its core. With a capital of 30 million yen, the company has maintained a stable and profitable management since its inception, steadily building achievements as a venture company with a solid financial foundation.

The main business activities of ITStudy Co., Ltd. include IT talent education, training, and development programs, IT school operations, maintenance and management of computer software and electronic data, and the design, development, sales, and management of computer systems. Furthermore, the company excels in recruitment services specializing in IT engineers and technical outsourcing (on-site resident support). It offers flexible proposals by combining optimal system solutions with highly skilled personnel to address the diverse technical challenges faced by corporate clients. The educational know-how rooted in its school operations ensures a comprehensive system that facilitates the skill development of its employees, which serves as the company's greatest competitive advantage.

Currently, the company has about 35 engineers, mainly in the System Development Department. A major characteristic of the organization is that young employees in their 20s and 30s play a central and active role, fostering a truly multinational work environment. It is a flat corporate culture where employees respect differences in each other's cultures and individual backgrounds, promoting open communication. There is no seniority system, and individuals can quickly advance from programmers to system engineers, and further to project leaders (PL) or project managers (PM) based on their practical skills and performance.

In addition, the company puts great effort into creating a comfortable and long-term working environment for its employees. It ensures a complete two-day weekend system (Saturdays, Sundays, and public holidays) with more than 120 annual holidays, and implements remote work (working from home) to balance work and personal life. The support system includes qualification allowances where the company covers the full examination fee for related certifications, as well as a track record of maternity and childcare leave, accommodating various life stages. Moving forward, ITStudy Co., Ltd. continues to grow with the aim of expanding its organization and reinforcing its structures further to meet future market demands.
