

Kanaigoto, Inc.

Company Description

Turning lives into stories, with AI and digital — a life-story tech company.

Kanaigoto Inc. is a life-story tech company providing end-to-end support across recruitment, career consulting, and AI-powered autobiography creation. We believe that every career is a chapter in a much larger personal story, and we walk alongside our clients through the turning points that shape it.

Our career advisors have built their own careers at global technology companies — including GAFAM (Google, Amazon, Meta, Apple, and Microsoft) — and at Japan's leading recruitment firms. We go well beyond simply presenting job openings. We prepare company-specific interview question sets, share real examples of successful placements, and coach candidates through behavioral interviews using the STAR method (Situation, Task, Action, Result), supporting every stage of the hiring process. Our role is to help you translate your experience into language that resonates, so you can make a decision you feel genuinely confident about.

We also develop our own AI-driven service that automatically creates personal life histories. The same technology we use to preserve people's journeys shapes how we support their careers: we listen closely to where you have been, and help you write what comes next.
