Job Description

Position Details

This time, we are looking for someone who can lead all types of inorganic projects under the direct supervision of the President.

They are expected to lead with extensive ownership from upstream to downstream of the case.

As a result, while possessing hard skills in planning, finance, legal affairs, valuation, and other areas, smooth communication skills are required between internal stakeholders such as management, business units, and corporate departments and external stakeholders such as legal and accounting experts and FAs.

In addition to providing accurate reports to management and general managers, and management and guidance to subordinates, they are also required to make the necessary analysis, documentation, and presentations to ensure the success of the project.

You will be responsible for strategic alliances across all of our businesses, including mobile, commerce and logistics, so if you have a strong interest in Internet services, this is an exciting job that will always stimulate your intellectual curiosity.

In addition, there have been cases where, after achieving satisfactory results in the relevant department, for example, they have participated in the PMI of an acquired company or been transferred to an overseas office, so it is possible to draw up a career plan in which they are involved in the execution of management strategies for the entire group and then work closer to the business.
