Job Description

COMPANY OVERVIEW

A growing research and advisory firm with a young and dynamic team is seeking for a Senior Research Analyst to lead research projects, guide junior analysts, and deliver strategic insights to clients. This role combines deep analytical work with real business impact, ideal for someone who thrives on solving complex problems and producing meaningful recommendations. Their projects span across various industries, offering wide exposure and hands-on experience, from market research to IPO advisory. They value curiosity, initiative, and clarity in thinking.

JOB RESPONSIBILITIES

- Gather, structure, and verify data from diverse sources to ensure consistency and reliability.
- Execute thorough primary and secondary research across a wide range of industries.
- Apply robust qualitative and quantitative analysis, supported by logical assumptions and effective modelling techniques.
- Develop clear, concise research reports and business plans, integrating data visualisations and strategic insights.
- Convert research outcomes into practical, client-oriented recommendations.
- Manage research projects independently, ensuring timely delivery and high-quality outputs.

- Foster and sustain strong client relationships through clear communication and continuous value delivery.

JOB REQUIREMENTS

- Bachelor's degree in economics, Finance, Business, or a related field.
- Minimum of 3 years' experience in research or consulting; IPO or capital market exposure is a strong advantage.
- Strong skills in market estimation and financial modelling are highly desirable.
- Exceptional attention to detail, with a strong focus on data integrity and quality.
- Excellent written communication skills, capable of producing clear, insightful, and well-structured reports in English.
- Skilled in sourcing and validating data from reputable and credible sources.
- Adept at addressing and resolving complex analytical problems.
- Proficient in both qualitative and quantitative research methodologies.
- Flexible and commercially astute, with the ability to adapt to various industries and market environments.
- Effective at juggling multiple tasks and meeting tight deadlines in high-pressure situations.
