Job Description

With over 400 years of history, this long-established enterprise is launching a greenfield IT initiative to bring computer vision and modern software into the construction industry.

The team tackles large-scale, real-world problems in a highly manual domain, combining enterprise stability with startup-like autonomy.

They are hiring a Product Owner to own the vision and backlog of their core digital product, bridging business and engineering to drive product direction and delivery.

Responsibilities

- Define and communicate product vision, roadmap, and priorities
- Manage the product backlog, user stories, and acceptance criteria
- Conduct customer, market, and competitor research to validate hypotheses
- Collaborate closely with management, sales, and engineering teams
- Participate in sprint planning, reviews, and release planning

Required Skills

Requirements

- 3y+ experience in product management and product planning
- Experience gathering requirements and translating business needs into products
- Strong stakeholder communication and coordination skills
- Business-level English and Japanese communication skills

Nice-to-Haves

- Agile / Scrum knowledge
- IT or digital product literacy (IT passport or higher)
- Marketing or market analysis experience

Why Join

- Play a key role in digitizing one of Japan's most impactful industries
- High ownership and autonomy in a product with real social impact
- Flexible work style with remote work and flextime
- Strong benefits, long-term stability, and clear career development support

Applying through SPOTTED, we guarantee:

- Access to roles you won't always find online
- Clear, honest and deep insights into the role, team, and interview process
- Personal support and specialist advise from first conversation to offer stage
- Open feedback throughout the process, so you're never left guessing
- A recruiter who's focused on long-term career fit, not just filling a role
- Discreet and professional recruitment support, especially for confidential or sensitive career moves
