Job Description

This is a brand-new position with an innovative biopharma company experiencing strong growth in Japan. As a result they are strengthening their compliance function with additional hiring and investment. This would suit an experienced compliance officer who is comfortable working independently, with a team, and the role offers the opportunity to shape and strengthen compliance practices within a growing and mission-driven organization.

The main responsibilities are as follows:

- Provide practical compliance guidance to the Japan business, including interactions with healthcare professionals, government officials, third parties, and promotional activities
- Support the Head of Compliance, Japan in implementing policies, internal controls, risk assessments, and monitoring plans
- Manage day-to-day HCC operations and participate in relevant internal committees

- Develop and deliver compliance communications and training to promote ethical conduct and policy awareness
- Monitor regulatory developments and enforcement trends, sharing updates with key stakeholders
- Support audits, inspections, and investigations, including implementation of corrective and preventive actions (CAPAs)
- Collaborate on compliance systems, process improvements, and global compliance initiatives

Required Skills

The successful candidate will have the following:

- 5+ years' experience in ethics, compliance, and/or legal roles within pharma, biotech, or medical devices, including operational HCC experience
- Solid knowledge of healthcare laws, regulations, and industry codes
- Experience enhancing compliance programs and supporting internal investigations
- Strong written and verbal communication skills in Japanese and English
- Highly organized, detail-oriented, and able to manage priorities effectively
- Proven ability to improve and implement processes
- Collaborative team player with strong cross-functional relationship skills
- High integrity and discretion with confidential information
- Bachelor's degree required; Business or Law preferred
