Job Description

Company Overview

A company in the financial services industry is hiring for an FX/Money Market Application Specialist. The organisation operates across multiple global regions and supports business lines that rely on complex, high-availability applications. The company is focused on maintaining modern, efficient systems and driving continuous improvement across its international operations, offering a dynamic environment for professionals who enjoy contributing to strategic transformation while supporting critical day-to-day processes.

Job Description

- Provide technical and functional expertise for core business applications, acting as the service owner responsible for ensuring availability, reliability and fitness for purpose.
- Analyse and resolve application issues, manage incident response, and coordinate communication with internal

- stakeholders and technical teams.
- Translate business requirements into functional specifications, collaborating with business sponsors and global project teams to enhance systems and support strategic initiatives.
- Contribute to application roadmaps, assess long-term service improvements, and drive modernisation, consolidation and efficiency across the application landscape.
- Liaise with stakeholders across EMEA, Americas and Tokyo to support ongoing operational processes, change initiatives and regulatory-aligned system enhancements.

Qualifications

- Strong functional knowledge of IT systems, including UNIX and Oracle databases.
- Experience in a technical support role, with an understanding of banking systems.
- Excellent analytical, problem-solving and stakeholder-management skills.
- Strong written and verbal communication skills in English, with the ability to convey clear and accurate information.
- Ability to multitask and work effectively in a multicultural environment.
- Desirable: Project management experience.
- Desirable: Good level of written and spoken Japanese.
