Job Description

L&D Specialist

Salary: ¥5M – ¥7M (Negotiable based on experience)

About the Company

A global leader in the semiconductor equipment industry, this organization operates as the Japan entity of a U.S.-headquartered company. With a strong presence across Japan and multiple service locations, it supports advanced manufacturing and technology operations nationwide.

Overview

We are seeking an L&D Specialist to support onboarding and learning & development initiatives in Japan. This role focuses on coordinating and delivering onboarding programs, supporting training initiatives, and ensuring a smooth new-hire experience.

You will work closely with both local and global stakeholders, including teams based in the U.S., acting as a key liaison to ensure alignment, timely execution, and effective communication across functions.

Required Skills

Key Responsibilities

- Act as a liaison between HR, Learning & Development teams, and internal stakeholders to ensure smooth program execution
- Support the design, coordination, and delivery of onboarding and assimilation programs (30/60/90/120-day milestones)
- Assist in converting onboarding content into web-based training formats in collaboration with global teams
- Coordinate timelines, track progress, and manage key project checkpoints for training initiatives
- Support recurring onboarding programs such as new graduate induction and internal training cycles
- Manage scheduling, logistics, and communication for training sessions and programs
- Maintain accurate tracking of participation, progress, and program effectiveness
- Collaborate with internal teams and external partners to ensure high-quality program delivery
- Identify process improvement opportunities and propose practical solutions
- Ensure clear and consistent communication across stakeholders

Why Apply?

- Opportunity to work in a global and structured organization
 - Exposure to international stakeholders and learning programs
 - Develop expertise in onboarding, L&D, and program coordination
 - Hybrid working style with flexibility
 - Potential for contract renewal and long-term career growth
