Job Description

About the Role
The EHS Engineer role offers a rewarding opportunity to drive environmental, health and safety excellence within a manufacturing environment. This position is focused on ensuring regulatory compliance, strengthening EHS management systems and fostering a safe and sustainable workplace culture.

Responsibilities

- Implement and maintain environmental, health and safety management systems.
- Conduct workplace inspections, risk assessments and safety audits.
- Investigate incidents and support corrective and preventive actions.
- Lead initiatives to improve workplace safety and environmental performance.

- Deliver EHS training programmes and promote safety awareness across the organisation.
- Manage hazardous waste and support environmental compliance activities.
- Conduct internal audits and support compliance with recognised EHS standards.

Requirements

- Bachelor's degree or above.
- Minimum 5 years of experience in Health, Safety and Environment or a related field.
- Occupational Safety and Health training certificate (Group 2) in accordance with Vietnamese regulations.
- Strong knowledge of EHS regulations, standards and hazardous substance management.
- Experience assessing manufacturing processes, equipment and workplace risks.
- Experience leading or managing teams.
- Good communication skills in both English and Vietnamese.
- Strong analytical, organisational and problem-solving skills.
- Ability to work independently and drive continuous improvement initiatives.

About the Company

A company in the manufacturing industry, this organisation is committed to maintaining high standards of environmental responsibility, workplace safety and operational excellence. The company provides a professional environment that values compliance, continuous improvement and sustainable business practices.
