Designer | PUSHCODE

We are looking for a Designer for PUSHCODE, a service that makes it easy to implement "web push notifications".

The development of PUSHCODE was selected for a "Monozukuri grant", and through joint development with VMware Tanzu Labs, we have an environment that provides hands-on experience with Lean Startup principles and Extreme Programming (XP) methodology.

[PUSHCODE] <https://www.pushcode.jp>

Designers start by defining the "personas" in product development, conduct user interviews, share the learnings with the team, and create prototypes to test the assumptions that need to be tested next.

We believe that one of the most important roles of a designer is to find the "issues that really exist" for the "users that really exist". Once those two things are found, you share them with your team, and then you develop together, working towards the same goal.

[Area of Responsibility and Job Description]

◆ User Research

You will design and execute a series of user research, from defining personas to conducting interviews, analyzing the results and sharing them. You will learn systematic user research techniques and tools, and contribute to the success of the product through the practice.

◆ UI Design

You will design easy-to-use UI that takes user behavior into account. You will be responsible for creating designs that will be implemented in the product, from designing wireframes and screen transitions. You will also continue to improve the design by making adjustments based on user feedback.

★The PUSHCODE team is multinational, and we develop in English. We are looking for people who respect different countries and cultures, diverse personalities and values, and enjoy working together.

* All recruitment and selection processes are in Japanese.*

Required Skills

* All recruitment and selection processes are in Japanese.*

The kind of person we are looking for

- People who want to expand their career to UX design as well as UI design and web design.
- People who want to hear from actual users.
- People who enjoy communicating with team members.
- People who enjoy the process of creating while testing (testing while creating).

Required skills

- Understand the basic concepts of user research in product development.
- 3+ years of experience in UI design or web design.

Welcome skills (If any of the above apply to you, please apply!)

- Practical experience as a UX designer.
- Practical experience in user research.
- Experience in leading a team of designers.

Spoken languages

- Japanese: Business level or native
- English: Ability to read English documents

Working style

★Remote work

Currently, all employees are working remotely. Once the situation of the new coronavirus (COVID-19) infection settles down, we plan to allow employees to come to the office to work. You can also continue to work remotely and move outside the commuting area of the office.

★Flextime system

EDOCODE has a flextime system, so as long as you work during the core hours of 10:00 - 16:00, the rest of your time is free.

Applying from outside Japan

★Time zone

You must reside in an area where the time difference from Asia/Tokyo(UTC+09:00) is within 2 hours.

★Contract

In principle, if you work while living outside Japan, the relationship is not an employment contract but an outsourcing contract. However, the way you are treated and interacted with in the company is exactly the same as that of an employee.

★Migration to Japan

We provide full support for foreign nationals moving to Japan to obtain their status of residence.

When Applying

★Resumes and CVs may be submitted in either English or Japanese.

Company Description

世界中の人びとに使われるプロダクトをつくる

EDOCODE は世界中の人々に使ってもらえるサービスを構想し、開発することを目的に創業されたベンチャー企業です。どんな文化や国の人でも価値を感じられ、使うであろうことが見込まれるプロダクトをつくっていきます。多くの人が生活のなかで不便に感じていることを IT/Web技術を使って解決し、世の中をより良くするために貢献していきたいと考えています。

世の中には常に不便があると思います。その不便がどうやったらなくなるだろうかと考え、解決策を世の中に出していくことが、私たちの存在意義になると考えています。

ただビジネスをうまく回し、収益を得る。それだけの存在でも、社会の一部としての役割は果たしているかもしれません。しかし本当にやりがいを感じて取り組めるのは「お金稼ぎ」ではなく、世の中からの手応えを感じられる事業です。

少しでも世の中を前に進めるために、私たちは私たちができることで世の中に貢献していきたいと考えています。
