募集要項

Our client is a digital innovation hub that combines advanced data science, AI, and cloud technologies to create intelligent, scalable solutions for real-world business challenges. Their teams work across industries to turn data into actionable insights that drive smarter decisions and measurable impact.

They are seeking a Product Manager to lead the end-to-end development of digital products—from concept to launch and continuous improvement. You'll work closely with engineers, designers, and business stakeholders to define product strategy, prioritize technical requirements, and ensure successful delivery. This role combines product vision with a strong understanding of technology and agile development.

Key Responsibilities

- Define product vision, roadmap, and success metrics for digital solutions.
- Manage the full product lifecycle, including planning, development, release, and optimization.
- Translate business needs into clear technical requirements and user stories.
- Collaborate with engineering and UX teams to design scalable, user-focused solutions.
- Prioritize backlogs and balance short-term delivery with long-term technical goals.
- Lead project execution, overseeing scope, schedule, and resources.
- Analyze performance metrics and drive continuous product improvement.
- Facilitate alignment across internal teams and external stakeholders.
- Promote agile development practices and data-driven decision-making.
