Our Team:
The Japan Vaccine Medical Team is a high-performing team of medical leaders who are a trusted source of Scientific and Medical information and shared insights; effective and innovative strategic partners to our internal and external stakeholders; and dedicated to public health. We represent diverse experiences and backgrounds which strengthens our team and mirrors the healthcare communities we engage.

Main Responsibilities:
The Medical Manager will participate to and execute the Medical and scientific (non-promotional) strategy for the Influenza & Covid Vaccines portfolio/therapeutic area in close partnership with the other functional franchise leads and in alignment with the overall franchise strategy.

-Utilize strong business acumen, acting as a key strategic business partner to the organization
-Initiate and drive projects to raise standards of care and change clinical practice
-Ability to work independently with a solutions-oriented and balanced approach to ambiguity

-Lead and drive rapid integrated evidence planning and execution through deep understanding of internal and external stakeholder evidence needs and robust data gaps analysis
-Deep therapy area expertise and product knowledge including competitor data
-Drive strong collaborative relationships with commercial and cross-functional teams, including marketing, value & access, health economics, regulatory and clinical
-Cultivate and maintain relationships with external experts
-Drive collaborative relationships with above-country colleagues to ensure the MCO / country involvement and strategic input into global and regional plans
-Good understanding of the impact and evolution of healthcare systems
-Lead creation and implementation of medical plans
-Ability to rapidly assimilate new data and integrate into new therapy area
-Create industry leading digital educational and scientific content that is timely, relevant, interactive and innovative
-Champion the patient voice when developing and implementing medical strategies
-Demonstrate strong leadership influencing across networks and by coaching and mentoring members of the team
